Aims and Objectives	The subject of political theories is an essential subject of a study of the political sciences, because it serves as a basis of understanding and political conception. The objective of this course is for students to encounter notions and approaches of social and political life from the aspect of their theoretical approach. Also, the aim is for students to gain in-depth knowledge, such as for schools, thinkers, and multiple theoretical approaches. The course provides insight into the development of political theory and political thought, focusing on contemporary political theories. The interlinking and context of different theoretical approaches and relevant aspects will be discussed continuously throughout the lectures.
Learning Outcomes	 Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to: Discuss about the basic concepts and the nature of different ideas and political approaches Receive basic knowledge of the principles of legal and social issues in the current political theories Understand domestic and international norms of political theories; Analyse and review issues related to the different theories, ideologies and different concepts.
